The screenshot shows a grammar exercise from a mobile application. The exercise title is "Grammar B1-B2. Reported". A "Feedback" box is open, displaying a total score of 8 out of 8 (100%). The main text of the exercise is "'I told Dom to email you three days ago.'" followed by a explanatory sentence starting with "→ She said that she had told Dom to". Below this, there are three options for填空: "then", "ago", and "before". The "before" option is selected and highlighted with a green background and a checkmark. At the bottom of the exercise area, there are two buttons: "Show answers" and "Show feedback".

Introduction

Daniela:

Hello everyone! Welcome to Show Lives.

Today we bring you a special edition where we explore the real stories behind famous people.

Together with Michael and David, we'll discover what inspires them every day.

Development

Sebastian:

Our first guest is Emma Watson. She said: "Education is the most powerful tool to change the world."

Later, she told us she has been working on a new campaign for women's rights.

Juan:

When we met her, she was visiting schools in Kenya.

She mentioned she had always wanted to help children since she was young.

Daniela:

Next, we talked to Chris Evans. He said: "Being Captain America changed my life."

He also shared that he had trained for months before filming.

Now he is focusing on directing movies about social causes.

Sebastián:

Chris told us he will release a new documentary next year about climate change.

Juan:

Finally, Selena Gomez has launched a mental health foundation.

She said: "It's okay not to be okay."

She added that her fans are giving her strength to keep going.

Conclusion

Daniela:

These stories show that fame is not only about success, but about purpose.

They told us that what really matters is making a difference.

This was Show Lives. Thanks for watching!
